How to Have Good Health.

Voluntary exercise is a health essential, although one may not die for want of it for many years. It is not strictly a life essential, but the road to perfect health lies through a certain amount of daily use of the muscles of the entire body. Most of our folks get plenty of exercise; some too much. Women doing house work may use all the muscles fairly well. And so with men doing ordinary farm work, or chores. The elderly, who do not work much, and those following sedentary occupations, should take some regular exercise, if they want to keep entirely well. It is nature's law. The use of any muscle wears it out a little, and new material from the blood builds it up again, hence the importance of drinking enough pure water, eating proper food and breathing plenty of pure air, so the heart can send out good rich red blood to all parts of the body to renew it as it is needed. But it is just as important for good health that some of the old body should die and be carried away by the blood to the various organs of elimination which take the waste out of the body. And this process of dying and being renewed, atom by atom, can not go on freely unless the muscles are used freely. Without taking any exercise at all intentionally you are still getting quite a little. You couldn't live if you didn't.

Every breath you draw and every movement of the heart, chewing and the process of digestion all are using up some muscular tissue, but not enough for ideal health. Some muscles are not used and the law of life is use. It is possible to get along fairly with very little intentional exercise, if one is willing to eat very little accordingly. But it is better to use all muscles, moderately at least, and then eat enough to supply their wants. Walking is excellent exercise for the brain worker, or those who sit down a great deal.

You can hardly build up vitality as fast in any other way as by proper walking in the open air. But be sure not to over do this, or any other exercise. It is just the easiest thing in the world to go too far in this line. The writer has, time and again. A little exercise stimulates decidedly. One feels better, and then does more and feels better yet, and so on until he overdoes and is worse off than before he began. Learn just how much is needed to keep you feeling splendidly and be at least very moderate about doing any more. The eliminating organs mentioned above are the bowels, kidneys, lungs and skin. Nature carries off the waste of the food and of tissue in these four ways. It is all important that you so live that perfect work can be done by each one of these four organs. Alas, very few people do. If you attend properly to the four life essentials of air, water, sleep and food, there should never be any trouble about perfect working of bowels, kidneys and lungs.

THE NEW DINING CAR SERVICE EXCELLENT

"The Comfortable Way"—Title Won by Great Northern Railway—A Hotel on Wheels.

It is, perhaps, best to say that in every respect—china, cuisine and attendants, the dining car service of the "Oriental Limited" is in keeping with the luxuriance of the remainder of this regal train, and has won, as the dining car service has always helped to win, the title, "The Comfortable Way", for the Great Northern Railway.

The new dining car service of the "Oriental Limited" equals in beauty, design and interior furnishings anything which is operated on any transcontinental line. Every luxury which a first-class hotel or club affords in the way of service is really on the dining car of the "Oriental Limited." The new dining cars were built with a special purpose in view of affording the most comfortable surroundings, as well as giving the traveler a unique and luxurious place in which to enjoy his meals. A gentleman who recently made the journey to the coast from St. Paul on the "Oriental Limited," in speaking of the dining car service, said:

"I have traveled on almost every important railroad in the United States but I have yet to find one which surpasses the "Oriental Limited" in the comfort and convenience afforded the traveler. Your dining car service is excellent, the equal of any in the country, and the superior of many. I was particularly struck with the beauty of the interior furnishings of these dining cars; they are really a novelty of car architecture."

One of these days the man who gets scolded when he complains of his wife's biscuits, will drop dead when he hears her apologizing for them to company.

ORGANIZATION MAKES GOOD SALES

There is general rejoicing throughout the dark tobacco district of Kentucky and Tennessee over the official announcement by F. G. Ewing, chairman of the executive committee of the farmers' association, of the sale of from 5,000 to 6,000 hogsheads of the 1904 crop, which is held by the association, to W. G. Dunnington, representing Joseph Ferigo, who holds the Regie contract. The average price secured was $8.85 per hundred pounds, figures ranging from $7 to $12, and this will bring from $700,000 to $800,000 to the farmers of the district. —New Era.

A Birthday Surprise.

Thursday, November 23 was the fifty-sixth birthday of J. E. A. C. Pickens, Crittenden county's popular and efficient deputy sheriff.

The day was ideal—just like a May soft as if they had been carried on the wings of lovely June.

Though pressed with the business of circuit court, Sheriff Lamb informed Mr. Pickens that he might go out home to dinner, and that it was time that he should go. Mr. Pickens was soon on the road, carried by his choice saddler. On his arrival he found, to his surprise, a number of horses and buggies on the lawn, then hurrying to the house and, on entering the room, he found it filled with relatives.

The surprise had been so successfully planned that he had no thought of such, and a sumptuous dinner was arranged by the skill of his faithful wife. Those present were:

Berry Deboe and wife, A. J. Pickens and wife, Louis Horning and wife, Will Sullenger and wife, Mrs. Eliza Deboe, Mrs. Nancy Millikan, Rev. L. J. Millikan and wife, of Murfreesboro, Ill., and John Pickens.

After dinner a number of valuable presents were unmasked. Smiles and congratulations abounded.

Youthful glee dominates the spirit of Mr. Pickens and nothing but plain, cold figures would indicate that he was fifty-six years old. —A FRIEND.

Stevens Comedy Company.

The Stevens Comedy Company left Sunday afternoon for Uniontown where they will meet a week's engagement.

Each performance was entertaining and first-class in every detail. "In the Shadow of the Gallows" presented Monday night and "The Black Flag" Friday night were especially interesting and pathetic, with a little vein of humor throughout.

Each member of the troupe was "on" to his duty and proved that he had completely mastered the role which had been assigned him.

Take it all in all, it was a good, clean show and was well patronized and Mr. Boaz, the manager this year is to be congratulated on securing such an up to date show and it is hoped that he will favor the public with many more before the season is over.

Marion Thankful.

Thanksgiving Day has come and gone and the only evidence left to remind the good people of the day is perhaps a few number of turkeys.

The good people of Marion have double cause to give thanks. They see their little town built up again in new beauty and on a larger and more commodious scale than ever before. That the good citizens of Marion see and are thankful for this there is no doubt. The banks and many of the stores closed their doors in commemoration of the day. Thanksgiving services were held at the C. P. church Thursday morning, conducted by Rev. T. A. Conway, pastor of the Baptist church at this place.

There were many family reunions and Thanksgiving dinners on that day of days. Those we have been able to learn so far were: Mrs. Nannie Cochran, Henry Cook, J. L. Travis, Geo. Roberts and E. J. Hayward. There was feasting and merrymaking among old friends and relatives who had not seen each other for a long time.

Skiff Overturned.

Carrsville, Ky., Nov. 30.—[Special]—By the overturning of a skiff W. L. Baker came near being drowned last Saturday. He and George McCune were preparing to leave Elizabethtown, Ill., where they had been on business, and had just shoved off from the shore when the skiff was overturned, throwing them and the owner in the river. The owner and Mr. McCune got to shore, but Mr. Baker was unable to do so. He was finally taken from the water apparently dead. Some two hours hard work brought him around all right. He is still suffering some at this writing.

Serious Accident.

Carrsville, Ky., Nov. 30.—[Special]—News has just reached here of a sad accident happening near old Dixon church. Will Todd, while climbing a fence, accidentally discharged a shotgun, the contents of which struck him in the left arm, injuring the member so seriously that amputation at the shoulder was necessary.

Child Badly Burned.

Carrsville, Ky., Nov. 30.—[Special]—A little child, two years old, of Mr. Frank Kemper, who lives near Eli, was badly burned last Friday morning. The skin was torn from its little back and the back part of its head. It is not expected to live.

IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH

Every Business Community Should Have a Commercial or Development Organization.

Since the recent State Development Convention in Louisville, the Louisville Commercial Club is more strongly imbued than ever with the possibilities awaiting Kentucky. It believes that every community in the State can profit by this awakened interest, but it is firmly convinced that the profit can be greatly enhanced through an organization of the working forces of the different towns. By working forces is meant the mercantile and industrial lines of the different sections. In brief, the Commercial Club feels that a most desirable way to meet and overcome difficulties confronting a business community lies in the organization of business clubs throughout the State and is reviving bodies which have temporarily lapsed into activity.

Mr. R. A. McDowell, former president of the club, has accepted the chairmanship of the committee, and has appointed as his associates thereon fifteen leading spirits of Louisville's commercial world and ten prominent editors in different parts of Kentucky.

The Louisville Commercial Club has no axe to grind in the step it is taking to organize more commercial bodies in the State. Its board of directors felt such an interest in State development, as was shown in the recent convention in Louisville, that it is willing to spend a large part of its funds in sending representatives to different cities to work up organization of the kind mentioned.

Any community that desires to take the step indicated will receive from the Louisville Commercial Club a copy of its by-laws and constitution, with suggestions as how to stir up interest in the organization. When the iron is hot enough to be struck, the commercial club will send a representative to help mold the body into definite form.

BALANCE OF BOND ISSUE OFFERED

New Winter Resort.

To the man whose imaginations is fed with facts and fortified with observation, the southern portion of the United States will always seem the favorite child of omnipotence and its handmaiden—Nature. Practically every resource that ministers to the wealth and greatness of a people has been lavishly placed within its borders.

Through the Creator of this full-bosomed magnificence dwell neither here nor there—but every where—we like, in all reverence, to call these Southern states indeed "God's country." One who knows the south realizes how, after material gifts have been so generously bestowed, the designing power completed its work by dotting it liberally with those imperative auxiliaries of modern civilization—resorts, summer and winter. In the case of the South these resorts have proven not only protectors of our people's health; they are adding now and they will add substantially in the future to our actual wealth.

The Florida resorts need no detailed eulogy at this date. They have won already thousands of wealthy Northerners and Southerners from the lure of the European spa or the call of the Riviera. A more wonderful conquest, and one which should interest the entire South, is that of the radiant Sapphire county, that Eden of the north Carolina mountains, with which the word "Toxaway" has become inseparably identified. Its beauties and its health-compelling qualities have been open to civilization for only a few years relatively; yet "Toxaway" means to a host of Southern and Northern people today recreation and recuperation under conditions as ideal as can be arranged by the copartnership of man and Nature.

The six hotels under the management of the Toxaway Hotel Company, with Mr. J. C. Burrows at its head, have been instrumental in this rapid achievement. The Sapphire country itself has done the rest. The hostelleries have been artfully located, getting the wide benefits which come from altitudes ranging from 2,250 to 4,780 feet. The far-reaching estate of Toxaway comprises 31,000 acres, in which are more than seventy-five miles of brook and river fishing, yielding the gamest of game trout. In the rugged recesses of the estate there are deer, wild turkey and ruffed grouse, with bears here and there and occasionally quail. The three lakes, like shimmering sapphires, splashed down in the heart of the mountains, with the winding forest roads, create indelible impressions of the place.

With the opening of the winter season Toxaway Inn—the greatest of all the Toxaway resorts—announces itself ready for business for the approaching season after completing the most successful summer season known in the history of summer resorts.

From this time on this institution becomes not only a summer but a winter resort, appealing to the South in the summer and to the North in winter. It is on the direct line of travel from eastern and western points to Florida, and Manager Burrows has made every arrangement to catch the business as it goes to and comes from Florida.

And it is safe to say that those who stop to take in the beauties of the Toxaway country will be amply compensated, for in the matter of scenic attractions there is nothing like it this side of the Rocky Mountains.—Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 12, 1905.

Sick Headache

When your head aches, there is a storm in the nervous system, centering in the brain.

This irritation produces pain in the head, and the turbulent nerve current sent to the stomach causes nausea, vomiting.

This is sick headache, and is dangerous, as frequent and prolonged attacks weaken the brain, resulting in loss of memory, inflammation, epilepsy, fits, dizziness, etc.

Alleviate this stormy, irritated, aching condition by taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills.

They stop the pain by sooth- ing, strengthening and reliev- ing the tension upon the nerves—not by paralyzing them, as do most headache remedies.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do not contain opium, morphine, chloral, cocaine or similar drugs.

"Sick headache is hereditary in my family," says Dr. Miles. "I have great deal, and for many years I have had spells that were so severe that I was unable to attend to my business affairs for a day or so at a time. During a very severe attack of headache, I took Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, and my relieved me almost immediately. Since then I take them when I feel the spell coming on and it stops it at once."

JOHN J. MCGRAW, Pres. S. B. Eng. Co., South Bend, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first package will benefit. If it fails he will return your money.

25 doses, 25 cents. Never sold in bulk.

"The Clansman" PROVES UNPOPULAR

And Young Author, Thomas Dixon, Jr., Is Sought by Young Citizens Who Are Infuriated.

At Columbia, S. C., Thos. Dixon, novelist and playwright, escaped mob violence in this city after the performance of his new play, "The Clansman," dealing with negro rule in South Carolina during the "construction" period, only by locking himself in his room in his hotel.

The play had been heartily hissed by the large audience which gathered, and later, when a number of young men prominent in the social and business life of the city gathered in the front of the hotel with hostile intent and sent up a note asking the playwright to come down, he suspected their purpose and refused.

Balked in their purpose of doing him bodily injury, the young men drew up a set of resolutions setting forth in unmistakable terms their opinion of the author and his play and had them sent up to his room.

The audience was composed almost entirely of white people, there being scarcely a dozen negroes in the gallery. From these there were no demonstrations.

Although he intended to spend Sunday in Columbia, Dixon "received a telegram" calling him to Savannah and left the city.

Tourist Cars Popular.

The idea that an inferior class of people patronize the tourist sleepers is an error. On many trips only the best class of travelers are found. They are merely men and women of good sense who would rather travel to California in this manner and save a snug sum of money to be used elsewhere. It is beginning to be understood that it is by no means necessary for the traveler to spend a large sum of money in order to enjoy a trip to the Pacific coast.

If you cross the continent in one of the tourist sleepers of the Union Pacific you will enjoy your trip and save considerable money. Inquire of J. H. LOTHROP, C. A., 903 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Hick's forecasts for the whole year, and more complete than ever, can be had by sending at once 25¢ to Word and Works Publishing Company, 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

OUR FASHION LETTER

Plaited Neck Ruchings to Be Worn With Cloth Gowns.

PLATEAU HATS OF STIFF FELT

No Hint of Crinoline in the New Paris Models—Embroidery Is Still Popular on Gowns and Blouses. Shell Flounces of Plaited Silk.

A sweater has been introduced this year made to wear under Eton jackets and short coats. It is a bolero pure and simple and buttons down the front, finishing at the throat with a small flat bow. There have been Norfolk, varsity sweaters and many other kinds, but this new one bids fair to be a great hit.

Huge neck ruchings of plaited net are to be worn with cloth gowns. They are almost as large as the Elizabeth ruffs and are made of wide, stiff ruchings of plaited net, finished on the ends with long loops of narrow ribbon or velvet. The streamers may be anywhere from a yard to a yard and a half in length. These ruches are very smart to wear with tailored suits before it is time to put on fur.

The hat of the moment among really well dressed women, because of its high price, is a perfectly flat plateau for the season which hall from Paris.

The very charming and graceful gown sketched is carried out in pale gray cashmere of the shade known as elephant gray, with Irish crochet lace for trimming.

The design would be quite easy to copy at home in almost any soft material.

FIBBLES AND FOIBLES.

The fancy for green is the natural sequel of the fad for brown, which has practically worn itself out, although in Paris a warm chestnut brown is taking things mildly by storm.

Handsome broadcloths this season are showing invisible plaid effects, a new departure for this conservative material to take.

THE BROWNIES HAVE ARRIVED IN MARION!

are Calling on All the Principal Business Firms in the City--Will Remain Over Next Week and the Rest of the Story to be Told in Our Next Issue.

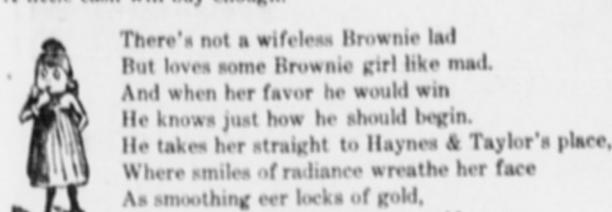

WHEN Palmer Cox, the Brownies' papa, Made up his mind that it was proper To tell the story of these folk, He must have thought it was a joke To slight the town in which you live And this is why this rhyme I give To you, and I will vouch its truth To skeptics all, in age or youth. The Brownies made your town a visit-- The date's not necessary, is it? And if their trip you'll kindly read up In all the steps by which they lead up, You'll learn more profitable things Than those of which old Palmer sings. I tell you where they made it pay To buy the things they got that day-- Also the things they chanced to see As here and there they wandered free In mischief, interest and glee-- And no matter how you would have it to be, This is their trip as they told it to me.

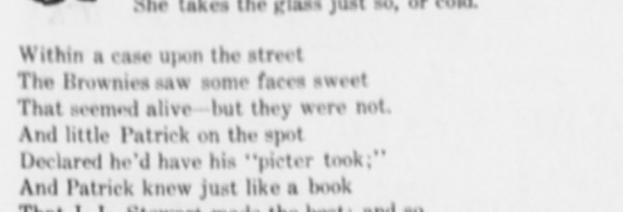

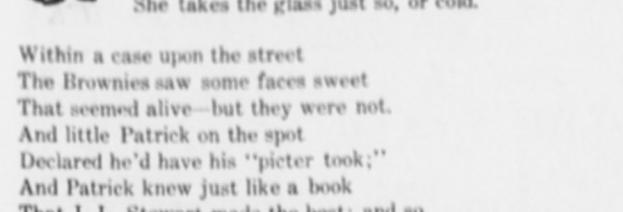

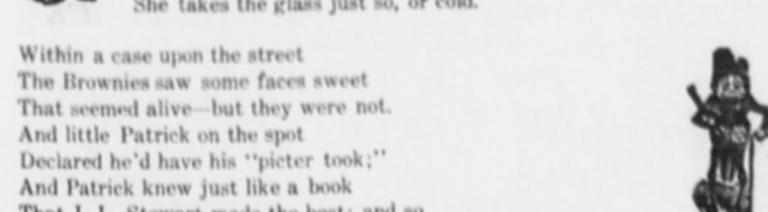

FROM the uttermost limits of Brownie land As though they were conjured by unseen hand, Came all of the busy little crowd With bustle and bustle and laughter loud, To visit our own, new, beautiful town, Through streets and avenues up and down. But not for pleasure did they come From out the dainty Brownie home, But bent on business, every one; Their work must end ere play begun. 'Twas in a great balloon they came-- The "Brownie Special" was its name. And when they lighted, each one stumbled, And clothes were ruined as they tumbled, But straight to Yandell-Guggenheim they flew, And soon were strutting in garments new That fit like the bark on a sycamore tree, And each one said: "How can it be That they can sell good clothes so cheap, And for the money such a heap?" For never had the Brownies seen (Though they around the world had been) Such splendid fitting garments sold For such a little stack of gold.

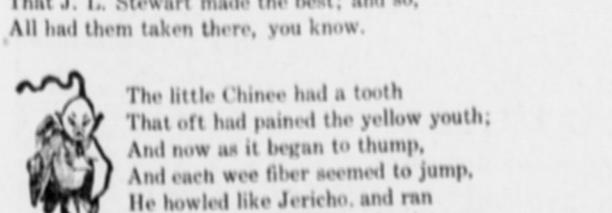

The Brownies are a tasty lot; Some things they like, some they do not-- Just like some bigger folks; and so That's why these dainty eaters go To M. Copher's grocery to trade, Who keeps all dainties grown or made, And all things else in eating stuff-- A little cash will buy enough.

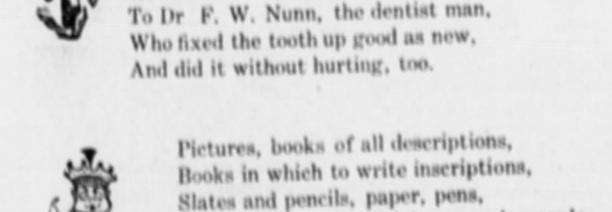

There's not a wifeless Brownie lad But loves some Brownie girl like mad. And when her favor he would win He knows just how he should begin. He takes her straight to Haynes & Taylor's place, Where smiles of radiance wreath her face As smoothing e'er locks of gold, She takes the glass just so, or cold.

Within a case upon the street The Brownies saw some faces sweet That seemed alive--but they were not. And little Patrick on the spot Declared he'd have his "picter took;" And Patrick knew just like a book That J. L. Stewart made the best; and so, All had them taken there, you know.

The little Chinee had a tooth That oft had pained the yellow youth; And now as it began to thump, And each wee fiber seemed to jump, He howled like Jericho, and ran To Dr. F. W. Nunn, the dentist man, Who fixed the tooth up good as new, And did it without hurting, too.

Pictures, books of all descriptions, Books in which to write inscriptions, Slates and pencils, paper, pens, Child-books, boys', girls', women's, men's, Ink, wall paper, moulding, toys, Every sort of homestead joys That the finer nature craves, For which man all hardship braves.

Were found at Woods & Orme's store.

Man could not have thought of more Of the pleasant things of earth Whence aesthetics had their birth. And the Brownies bought and bought, With the money they had brought, Till of wanting there was naught.

Hammers, augers, squares and screws, Hatchets, nails, that all men use, Levels, braces, chisels, saws, Compasses with iron jaws, Lawn mowers, brushes, hose and locks, Flat-irons, glass and whetting rocks-- O, this full stock's name is legion, Largest kept in all this region. The man who made the dictionary Might try to name the things they carry, But all in vain. There's nothing missed From Cochran & Pickens' hardware list-- Also in paints they keep the best.

"I want some perfumes, toilet soap, Also some medicines; I hope That Haynes & Taylor's drug store is open yet, For nowhere else can people get Such fresh, pure goods and such a stock At figures too, that seemed to mock Competitors, and beat them too." Thus spoke one Brownie, and it's true.

But something practical arose Or aught else; 'twas the need of stuff To cook and eat. And well enough Each one was pleased when he had gone To Morris & Yates' grocery further on; The stock was large, fresh, clean, complete, And prices there cannot be beat.

Diamonds, cut-glass, watches, rings, Every sort of pretty things The Brownies found at prices low At Levi Cook's where wise folks go To buy their jewelry; and there The Brownies learned what bargains were. Be wise--these imps' example heed, Whene'er some jewelry you need.

Their journey was to last a day And so, before they went away They bought provisions for their teams At prices they had heard in dreams. No hesitancy then they felt In giving Williams & Guess the belt For keeping the finest stock of feed For beast of milk or draft of speed.

And now to please the inner man With product of the pot and pan, The hungry Brownies hustled out To New Marion Hotel--a merry rout. And everything was cooked just right; The quantity was "out o' sight" And every bite they had to eat They all declared was hard to beat.

Some furniture the Brownies needed, And as their friends' advice they heeded, They went to Nunn & Tucker's where they found Their every need; and now they sound The praises of the goods they bought At Nunn & Tucker's store; and they ought. "For sure," says Pat, "we struck it rich; Who ever heard before of such?"

Scarce had they shrunk their wondering eyes Once more unto their natural size, When once again their wonder grew And out again those eye balls flew To greet a sight so wondrous grand The Brownies thought 'twas Fairyland. There, not a thing those Brownies missed That e'er was found on shopping list.

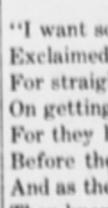

Service for table, lamps and brooms, All household trinkets; brides and grooms Can find no better place to go If quantity is what they'd show Along with quality that's prime-- They buy at Morris & Yates' every time. And dishes, tinware, dolls and books Make plenty everywhere one looks.

Then to insure 'gainst fire and storm That little home so snug and warm, To Geo. M. Crider & Co. the Brownies went, And ere they left they were content That whatever happened, flood or fire, Or wrathful storm--Jehovah's ire, They'd get good pay for what was lost, And at a very moderate cost.

To gain a thorough business knowledge The Brownies sought a business college, 'Twas Marion High School where they found The wisdom, ample and profound, To keep their books and deal with banks, And not a Brownie in their ranks But knew how interest comes and goes And how the tide of traffic flows.

"I want some nails and farmers' tools," Exclaimed two imps; they were no fools, For straight to Hina-Babb's they went, On getting great big bargains bent, For they had read the papers o'er Before they left the Brownie shore, And as they had no cash to burn They knew which way to make the turn To go where stock is large and good As any kept since Noah's flood. They purchased files and planes and chisels, Bicycles, chains and wheelmen's whistles In hardware line; and they refrained Until no want to them remained, When they could carry nothing more; And then they bolted from the door, Set down their loads to count their money Then laughed as if 'twas all quite funny.

The shades of night were falling fast As through an Alpine village passed A youth who bore 'mid snow and ice, A banner with this strange device: "It pays to advertise."

His brow was bright, his smile was sweet And as he passed with rapid feet, Like clarion, clear and strong, The accents of a well known song.

"It pays to advertise."

In happy homes he saw the light And helped to make homes more bright By telling them wherever he went The adage that would bring content,

"It pays to advertise."

"Come back, come back!" a maiden said As onward fast the young man sped, Tell us the news as you go by;

This was the stranger's sole reply:

"It pays to advertise."

Beware the pine trees withered branch, "Beware the awful avalanche,"

The maid then cried as he onward sped To tell the world that merchants said

"It pays to advertise."

The pious monks upon the height Asked faintly if they heard aright A voice crying through the air This oft-repeated, potent prayer,

"It pays to advertise."

There, in the twilight, cold and gray, Lifeless, but beautiful he lay,

Still bearing in his hand of ice,

The banner with this true device,

"It pays to advertise."

SUBSCRIPTION ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

Entered as second-class matter July 15, 1904, at the postoffice at Marion, Ky., under Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1905.

The deficit of the national treasury which was $24,000,000 last fiscal year, will be very much less this year, says Secretary Shaw.

Several contest notices have been filed in Caldwell county, and it may yet depend upon the decision of the court as to who the duly elected candidates were in the recent election.

The editor is thankful that he still lives; the (office) devil is not. The typewriter's star is still Luna and the typos are thankful for their new quarters—the editor hasn't any, to say nothing of dollars.

We are able to roast our own potatoes and get them out of the fire, but consistency is a jewel, you know, and when we are expected to roast potatoes for others and get them out of the fire, too, that's the limit.

The Democratic and Republican candidates for sheriff in Lyon county on the face of the returns, received the same number of votes at the November election; however, the certificate of election was given the Democratic candidate by the canvassing board which claimed a mutilated ballot in favor of the Democrat.

The Court of Appeals has recently handed down a decision in which it holds that the present system of working roads in many counties is contrary to the statutes of the State. Under the law each county is to have a Supervisor of Roads who is to receive $750 per year for his services, and he is to have full charge of all the roads of the county. This will do away with overseers or supervisors for each magisterial district.

WASHINGTON LETTER

From Our Regular Correspondent

Washington, D. C.—Secretary Shaw has given it out to some personal friends that there will be no call in the coming Presidential message for fresh financial legislation so far as he is concerned. He has not given any figures, but states that the condition of the country is much better than during the last fiscal year and the deficit which was then something like $24,000,000.00 will be considerably reduced. Sec'y Shaw has been called upon by a number of business delegations that feared idea. But often the school room is the hot bed wherein the idea is germinated—therefore, it's importance.

The man with a hobby is perhaps as important in world affairs as the man with an idea. There are many "plug horses"; there are many "plug hobbies" and that which produced the one produced the other—overriding. For want of a better term the world chooses to designate the hobby-burdened man a bore. But Tom Watson calls them by the more euphonious name of "cranks." Perhaps for no other reason than they "turn things."

Much is being said now about the "age limit of usefulness." Dr. Osler would best have kept his mouth or quit his own job, he being above his own inexorable age limit. He is useful to the world who helps his fellow men upward whether he be youth or octogenarian. Tennyson sings as well in his "Locksley Hall" sixty years after as he does in the "Locksley Hall" of his youth. Besides,

"Cato learned Greek at eighty; Sophocles Wrote his grand O Edipus, and Simonides Bore off the prize of verse from his competitors

When each had numbered more than four-score years:

And Theophrastus at four-score and ten Had but begun his characters of men.

Chaucer at Woodstock with the nightingales At sixty wrote the Canterbury Tales,

Goethe at Weimar toiling to the last Completed Faust when eighty years were passed."

In a recent article McHenry Rhodes says:

"The lives of Shakespeare, Lincoln, Spencer, Burritt, Browning, Irving and numerous others, tell the story of mental vigor and activity, the gulf stream of their lives keeping warm the arctic regions of their souls as long as life lasted."

There is a fear expressed in some quarters the canal situation will have unfavorable effect on the financial showing of the country. It is stated that before Congress passed the canal bond bill, the canal commission will have contracted liabilities amounting fully to $16,000,000 that will have to be met by the close of the coming fiscal year. It is the intention of the commission to pay back this money into the Treasury out of the proceeds of the bond sale, but there will be some delay in the issuing the bonds as additional legislation will be needed before they are available as the basis of national bank circulation. They were not so made by the Spooner Act and it is recognized that they are to bring much above par or even that.

There has been some discussion as to whether the Panama Canal Commission was authorized to go on with the work and contract bills in excess of $10,000,000. already appropriated. But the matter was laid before both Secretary Taft and Chairman Shantz and they both agreed that under the Spooner Act the President was empowered to go ahead with the construction of the canal certainly up to the limit of the $135,000,000 authorized in the bond issue in addition to the $10,000,000 already granted. The board of the Consulting Engineers of the canal have already held their last meeting before reassembling in Brussels where the report will be finally signed. They will sail before the end of this month.

The same old methods, the same old plans, the same old, old ways, with never a change. Treat, treat, treat, as if in real life as in poetry. "The path of glory leads but to the grave," is the biography of many teachers.

It sometimes takes an armor proof against criticism to run up against some of the old superstitions that are so dear to many hearts. These old shattered citadels can be stormed and taken only by education—that education that enlightens and broadens.

Edward Everett Hale, author of "The Man Without a Country," says in order to preach forty sermons he must have forty good ideas. Is this not "stretching the fabric?" Not in the least, and more; the same law that Mr. Hale makes to control his pulpit work, should control the teacher's school life. Law is but a crystallized idea. But often the school room is the hot bed wherein the idea is germinated—therefore, it's importance.

Perhaps for no other reason than they "turn things."

How Mr. Nickerson Was Won

[Original.]

The Nickersons had been literary people for generations. One of them, who admired Thackeray above all authors, named his only son Pendennis. Pendennis was an honor to the name. He would read no authors except those who were only appreciated by a critical few. He was rich in his own right and had no need to labor—just the man whom girls looking out for love in a clueten are disposed to angle for. Among those who angled for Mr. Nickerson was Miss Lydia Marble, and she angled methodically.

Miss Marble believed that the girl Mr. Nickerson would wed must be intellectual and by all means literary. Having procured a list of his favorite authors, she glanced over some of their works (she was much bored in doing so) and admired them in Mr. Nickerson's hearing. Nickerson was charmed at the discovery. He had usually found his girl friends devoid of good literary taste. How refreshing to meet one who could sympathize with him in his likes and dislikes!

Miss Marble went to the mountains for the summer, and Mr. Nickerson followed her. He carried with him "Muchmore," a book by a new author that critics of the highest grade pronounced a wonder. There was no plot. Nickerson detested all except realistic novels, but the English in it was simply perfect. Nickerson gave the book to Miss Marble, who seized upon it with well feigned avidity, though she was much chagrined at its length.

Now, the stories Miss Marble most loved and the stories Mr. Nickerson most detested were detective stories. Unfortunately, she had just got her hands on "The Mystery of the Munro Murder," a maze out of which the real culprit emerges in the last chapter, having done the murder at the bottom of a well with a gold toothpick. The book was incased in a flaming red cover and easy to be recognized. Miss Marble felt that great care was necessary in order that Mr. Nickerson should not stumble upon it while she was reading it. She first skimmed "Muchmore," making notes upon certain points; then she was ready for keen enjoyment with "The Mystery of the Munro Murder."

There was at the hotel where Mr. Nickerson and Miss Marble were staying a pink chequered, blue eyed little girl, so demure that it seemed butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. Her name, Kittle Cloverleigh, was as gentle sounding as she was gentle looking. Miss Cloverleigh cast longing eyes on the intellectual Mr. Nickerson. He had noticed her as a delicious bit of flesh and blood who, if devoid of intellect, was surely very kissable. One morning Miss Cloverleigh went to the Marble rooms and there on a table saw a copy of "Muchmore," with notes in pencil. Miss Cloverleigh, believing in the adage, "All's fair in love and war," appropriated the notes and learned that Miss Marble had gone to the cliff to read. The cliff faced the hotel from across a valley about a mile wide.

Miss Marble the evening before had noticed in a periodical a criticism of "Muchmore" by one of the most critical critics of the day. Armed with Miss Marble's notes and a study of this criticism, which she did not understand, she sought Mr. Nickerson, who was reading a review called "The Critic of Critics" on the piazza. She began to scintillate with opinions on his favorite novel, "Muchmore." Nickerson was astonished. Miss Cloverleigh's simple beauty had attracted him, now her subtle analysis of a book that no one could quite understand charmed him.

On the piazza was a small telescope swung on a tripod used by the guests of the hotel to look at the neighboring mountains. As soon as Miss Cloverleigh had impressed Mr. Nickerson with her powers of criticism she proposed that they should amuse themselves with the telescope. She soon turned it to the cliff.

"Why, I declare," she exclaimed, "if there isn't Lydia Marble!"

"Indeed," said Nickerson. "What is she doing?"

"Reading. The book has a red cover. I wonder what book it is?"

Miss Cloverleigh turned the glass over to Nickerson, who looked at the unconscious Miss Marble sitting on a rock devouring a book which from its cover he readily recognized as "The Mystery of the Munro Murder."

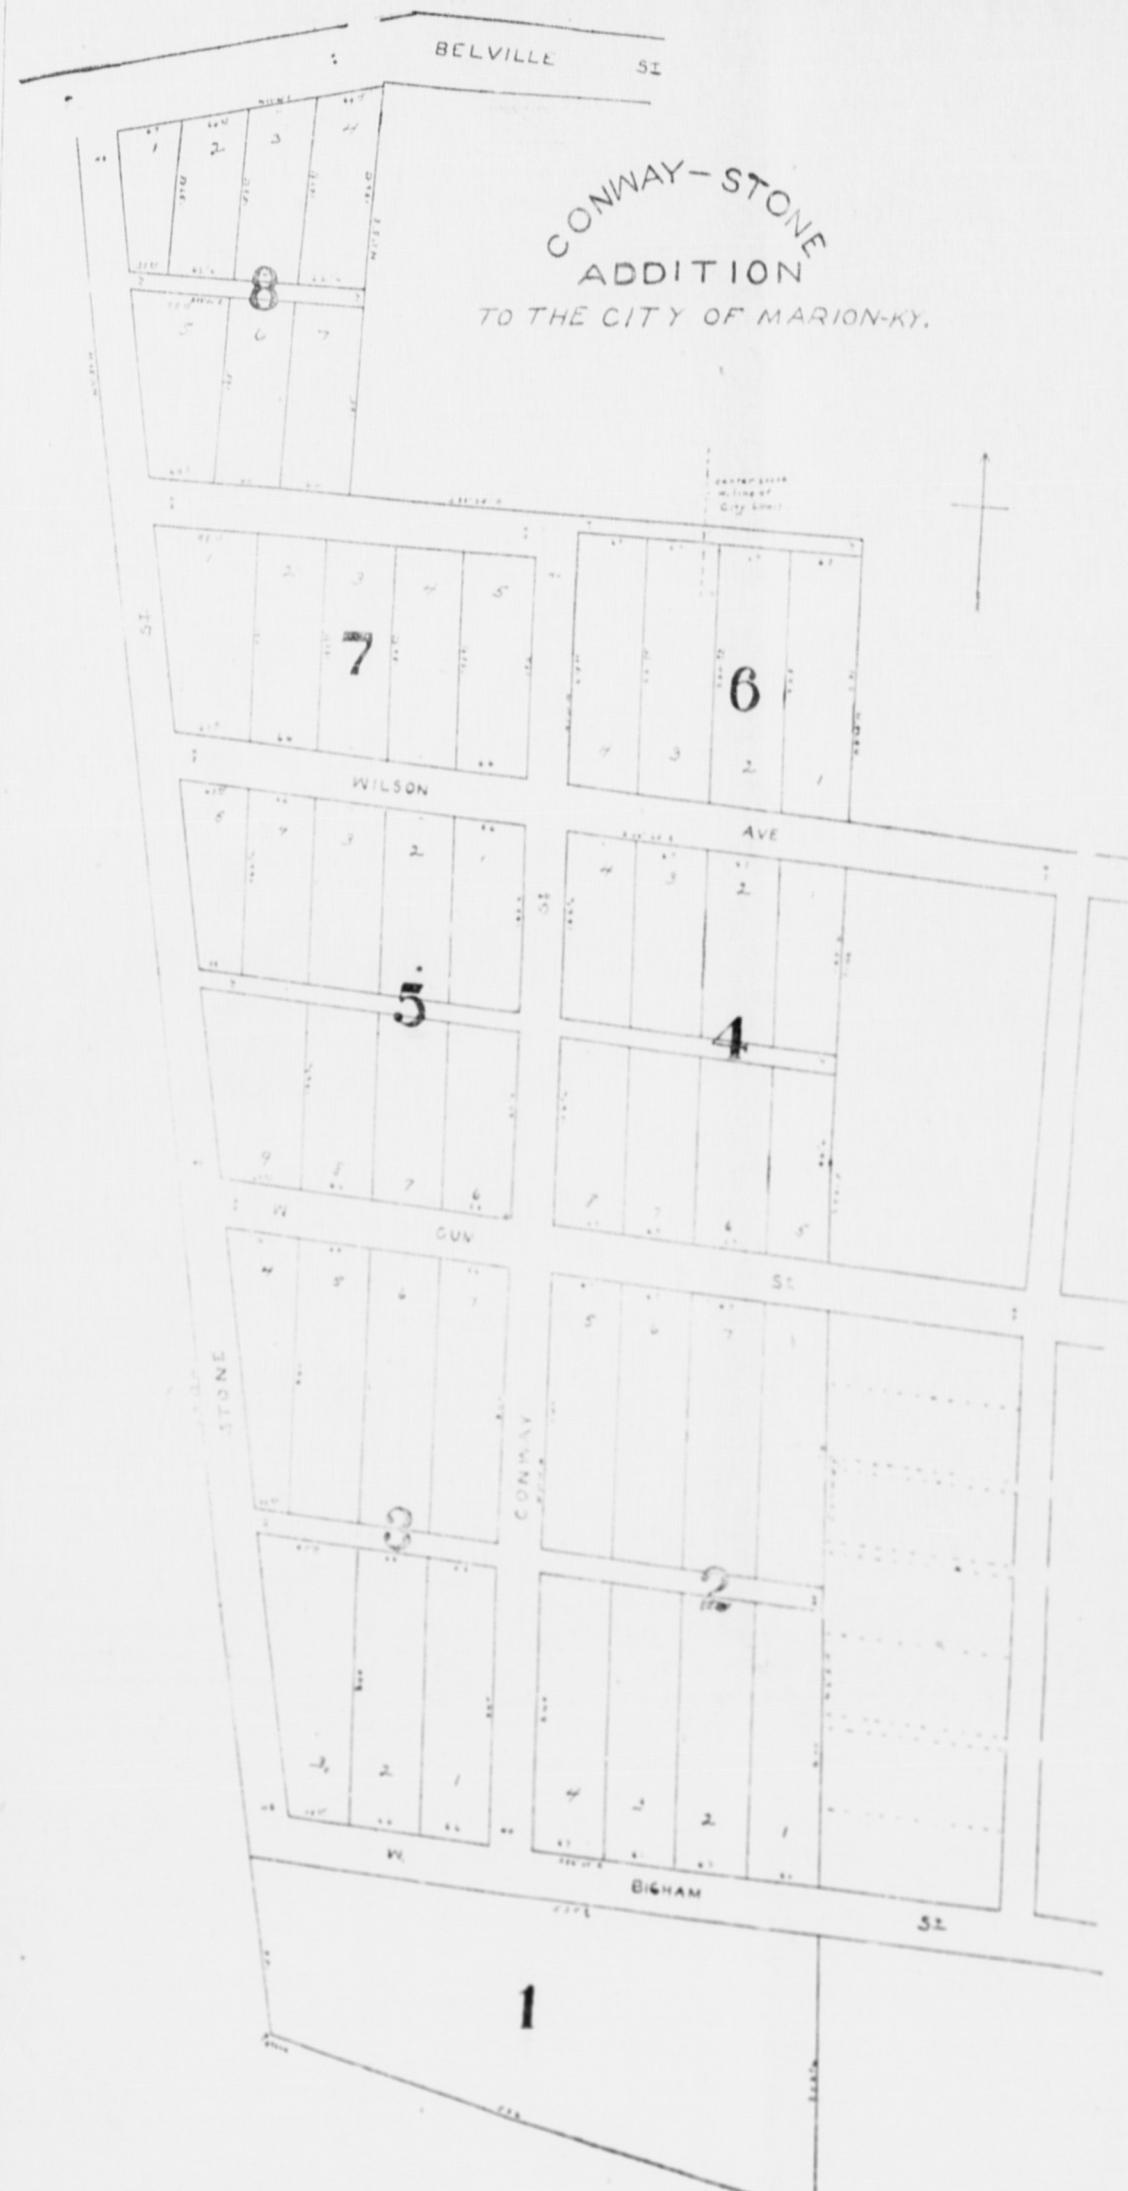

"She's reading that detestable detective story," he exclaimed.

"Is she?" replied Miss Cloverleigh. "I don't see how she can read such trash."

At that moment Miss Cloverleigh—possibly she thought he was through with the instrument—tried to look through it and their cheeks rubbed against each other. Both drew away and, both mistaking the other's intentions, again attempted to put an eye to the telescope. The result was another meeting of cheeks.

This was the beginning of a change in Mr. Nickerson's attentions. In vain Miss Marble endeavored to attract his sympathy by her book talk and admiration for literary style and that exquisite handling of the English language without which no book could be to her taste. The pink chequered Miss Cloverleigh had captivated him and there was no detaching him. Miss Cloverleigh, having put in an entering wedge, dropped book talk and resorted to such means as she had put in practice when Mr. Nickerson had inadvertently rubbed his cheek against hers. The result was that when she left the mountains she and Mr. Nickerson were engaged. BLANCHE T. CARRUS.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON X, FOURTH QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, DEC. 3.

Text of the Lesson, Neh. iv, 7-20. Memory Verses, 19, 20—Golden Text, Matt. xxvi, 41—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Copyright, 1906, by American Press Association.) The life of Nehemiah illustrated the meaning of his name, "The Comfort of Jehovah;" for in the midst of all his difficulties and discouragements—and they were very many—he did find his joy and strength in the Lord. Having returned to Jerusalem, accompanied by captains of the army and horsemen and with authority to obtain what was necessary to build the wall of the city, he spent three days quietly investigating before he told the rulers of the Jews or the priests what he had come for. It wise as rule not to talk to others about your affairs, but it is always safest to consult Him who sends you above everything and then do whatever He says (Prov. iii, 5, 6; John ii, 5). It is instructive to note Nehemiah journeying with an escort and Ezra with one, and God was with each of the. In the New Testament story Barabbas sold his property and put the mō in the treasury, while his sister kept hers and made it a house prayer. We must not follow others—everwise wise and good their ways be, but follow "Jesus only." And in His and our whole being His disposal, we should say, as Nehemiah did: "The God of heaven, He will see us." Our God shall fight for us (III, 20; IV, 20). The adversary is also grieved when any one becomes "stably in earnest" in the Lord's work, we will do his utmost to hinder, but we must be neither fear nor compunction on the part of the servants of God. All that is required of us are to do our best and a readiness for a manner of service, and then God surely accomplishes His pleasure. For those who built this were goldsmiths, merchants, apostles, women, etc. (III, 8, 12, 32). Unlikely people to build a stone but because they had a mind to and God was with them they prospered, and the work was finished spite of all their enemies, and God glorified. Because the work was done by those who naturally had not for such work their enemies in confess that the work was done of God (vii, 15, 16).

We must never forget that are always enemies seeking to us and to hinder the work—in a great adversary seeking to destroy and we must ever watch and we did these builders (7:9). See also 7; 1 Pet. v, 8, 9; Eph. vi, 10-14; xiii, 33-37. When there are we discouraged—somes among the own whose motto seems to be not able" (10), matters are than if there were only enemies out. Such were the ten spies before whom all Israel became disengaged and were kept in the widest many years (Num. xiii, 31-33). motto should always be, "Our God able" (Dan. iii, 17), or, as in verse 1 of God, "Be not ye afraid; remember the Lord."

God will always bring to naught counsel of the adversary (verse 15), will help thee." The words "every one unto his work" verse 15 make us think of the words of our Lord in Mark xiii, 34, "To every man his work," and 1 Cor. xii, 11, "To every man severally as He will," for we are taught in Eph. ii, 10, that all good works of all believers are prepared beforehand for us to walk in, and also that "it is God who worketh in us both to will and to do of His good pleasure," and that from Him we can do nothing (Phil. ii, 13; John xv, 5). From the fact that the wall began and ended at the sheep gate (iii, 1, 32) we gather the suggestion that whatever work is not begun, continued and ended in and by Him who was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and done by those who are redeemed with His precious blood, will not count. From chapter iii, 10, 27, 29, we learn that we are to do the work that is nearest to us, however lowly it may be, "every one over against his house," or as elsewhere, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do." "For any manner of service, wholly at His commandment" (Ecccl. ix, 10; 1 Chron. xxviii, 21). While some builded, others held the weapons, and even the builders had their swords girded upon them (verses 16-18). Our whole life is a warfare against the world, the flesh and the devil, and Eph. vi, 10-18, is the only way. For the many who are compelled to wait or tarry by the stuff while others work there is word of great comfort in I Sam. xxx, 24. The workers, being far separated one from the other, were to be ever listening for the sound of the trumpet (verses 18-20), so we, girt about with truth and with the sword of the Spirit, are to be ever listening for the trumpet of I Thess. iv, 16, which shall end the present age, or at least proclaim it near, by the fact that the church has been completed.

These builders certainly worked a full labor day, "from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared" (verse 21), but we are not working full time unless by a prayerful or financial interest, or both, in some missionary on the other side of the globe, who works while we sleep, and vice versa, we are earnestly living to complete the church.

THANKSGIVING DAY

By Rustic.

Thanksgiving has not yet made its way to all parts of the country with the hearty welcome that has been accorded to the Christmas festival. But because it is associated with the home and with the affections that make the home the dearest spot on earth to all who are fortunate enough to enjoy its blessings, it will grow and gather to itself associations of tenderness and trust as the generations pass. As the magical effects of prayer and praise drop out of the thoughts of men, a mood of pure thanksgiving succeeds, and this blending with the divine affections of the household makes Thanksgiving to be nearly a perfect holiday. It is a holy day, on which, without reserve, all natural forms of gladness may come to expression.

It is not a Sabbath to break but a festival in which joy and gladness may reign in the hearts and homes of men. Although it has been established in the name of the government of the nation, it binds no man's conscience, it opposes no one's creed, and it may be accepted by any one who has a song of gladness in his heart, although he does not know the source of the good things that he enjoys and cannot thank the Giver.

A PSALM OF THANKSGIVING.
For life—
The magic thrill
And ecstasy of vibrant life;
The power inherent in the human frame
To rise triumphant from the primal clay;
The vista-glimpse of dawning days ahead
And conscious energy to do
Life's golden deeds;
To stand firm-footed on the sunlit ground

With paths uploading to the heights above,
And living chance to act, achieve, attain,
For life, our Father, do we utter praise!

For love—
Divinest gift
Bestowed upon our human race
By One who loved, and, loving, gave;
God smiled as he created, and the smile,
Caught and retained by the created clay
Became the seal and surety
That we call love;

The seal of kinship with God who loves,
The surety of life, of fuller life,
Of life eternal, limitless, sublime—
For love, our Father, do we utter praise!

For light—
The ray direct,

Down shining from thy radiant self,

As sunbeam flashes from the sun to sod;

But light from thine own face agleam

Upon thy path;

The way illuminated, doubt and danger gone,

The day clear-skied, the course of duty plain,

And but one task to tread it in the light—

For light, our Father, do we utter praise!
